World Health Organization (WHO) and Partners in Population and Development (PPD) invite you to a special panel entitled “Gender, Equity and Human Rights: Improving health outcomes for women and girls” at the Women Deliver Conference (www.womendeliver.org).

Time: Evening (7:30 – 9: 30); Date: Wednesday, 29 May 2013; Room Number: 403; Venue: Kuala Lumpur Convention Centre.

The panel will be attended by ministers and senior officials from the ministries of health, planning commission and finance, parliamentarians, diplomats and leaders of civil society organizations.

The goal of the Satellite Panel is to explore the intersection and relative impact of a gender, equity and human rights approach in improving health and wellbeing of women and girls. The objectives of the panel are to:

- discuss the impact of gender, equity and human rights on women and girls’ health outcomes;
- explore importance of the synergistic strength of gender, equity and human rights through mainstreaming and;
- explore gender, equity and human rights in the post MDG agenda.

Panel Speakers:

Dr. Alicia Yamin, Director, Program on the Health Rights of Women and Children, François-Xavier Bagnoud, Center for Health and Human Rights.

Dr. Marleen Temmerman, Director, Reproductive Health and Research, WHO

Dr. Purnima Mane, President and CEO, Pathfinder International

Moderators:

Dr. Joe Thomas, Executive Director, PPD and Dr. Elizabeth Mason, Director of Maternal, Newborn, Child and Adolescent Health – WHO
